

Understanding the world: Fill in the blanks activity

Our beliefs can be _____ or false. There are many different reasons we might believe something but all of these can be mistaken. Many humanists therefore believe everything should be open to _____. They believe we have a _____ to ask questions, think carefully, and look at the _____.

Humanists believe that _____ provides the best way of looking for evidence and testing our beliefs about the world. Scientists sometimes make mistakes. However, science keeps testing its results to check if they are true and it can correct its mistakes. Science has helped us to make _____ in our understanding. For many humanists, _____ can be one of life's great pleasures, and science can be a source of _____ and joy.

Humanists believe the world is a _____ place. They don't believe in anything supernatural. They don't think there is any good or persuasive evidence. Humanists don't believe in a god. They don't think there is any good reason or evidence to believe. Someone who doesn't believe in a god is called an _____.

atheist	question	natural	science	progress
evidence	responsibility	wonder	curiosity	true

Understanding the world: Fill in the blanks activity (answers)

Our beliefs can be true or false. There are many different reasons we might believe something but all of these can be mistaken. Many humanists therefore believe everything should be open to question. They believe we have a responsibility to ask questions, think carefully, and look at the evidence.

Humanists believe that science provides the best way of looking for evidence and testing our beliefs about the world. Scientists sometimes make mistakes. However, science keeps testing its results to check if they are true and it can correct its mistakes. Science has helped us to make progress in our understanding. For many humanists, curiosity can be one of life's great pleasures, and science can be a source of wonder and joy.

Humanists believe the world is a natural place. They don't believe in anything supernatural. They don't think there is any good or persuasive evidence. Humanists don't believe in a god. They don't think there is any good reason or evidence to believe. Someone who doesn't believe in a god is called an atheist.

atheist	question	natural	science	progress
evidence	responsibility	wonder	curiosity	true