

What is humanism?: fill in the blanks activity

Humanism is a _____ worldview or approach to life shared by millions of people in the UK and around the world. Humanists believe it is possible to lead a good, happy, and meaningful life without the need for religion.

Humanists believe the world is a _____ place with no supernatural side. They will be atheists or agnostics. They believe that _____, and looking for _____, gives us the best way of answering our questions about the world.

Science has discovered that human beings _____ naturally like all other living things. Many humanists celebrate many of our natural capacities and our achievements. They are often optimistic about our _____ to make life better for ourselves and others.

Humanists believe this is the _____ we have and so we need to make the most of it. For humanists, there is no single 'ultimate' meaning of life. Instead, it is up to us to make our own lives meaningful. They believe we should all be _____ to decide how we live (as long as we do not cause harm to others). We should seek to find what makes us _____ and support others to do the same.

Many humanists believe the origins of morality lie inside human beings and our evolution as a social animal. Many say that, when deciding how to act, we should use reason and _____, considering the consequences of our actions and the likely impact on other people and animals.

For humanists, human beings alone are _____ for making the world a better place. Many campaign for equality, human rights, and _____ (a state that guarantees freedom of belief with no one privileged or disadvantaged because of their religion or belief). They celebrate the progress humanity has made, but recognise the work that is still to be done.

happy	non-religious	empathy	natural	potential	evidence
science	secularism	evolved	free	responsible	one life

What is humanism?: fill in the blanks activity (answers)

Humanism is a non-religious worldview or approach to life shared by millions of people in the UK and around the world. Humanists believe it is possible to lead a good, happy, and meaningful life without the need for religion.

Humanists believe the world is a natural place with no supernatural side. They will be atheists or agnostics. They believe that science, and looking for evidence, gives us the best way of answering our questions about the world.

Science has discovered that human beings evolved naturally like all other living things. Many humanists celebrate many of our natural capacities and our achievements. They are often optimistic about our potential to make life better for ourselves and others.

Humanists believe this is the one life we have and so we need to make the most of it. For humanists, there is no single 'ultimate' meaning of life. Instead, it is up to us to make our own lives meaningful. They believe we should all be free to decide how we live (as long as we do not cause harm to others). We should seek to find what makes us happy and support others to do the same.

Many humanists believe the origins of morality lie inside human beings and our evolution as a social animal. Many say that, when deciding how to act, we should use reason and empathy, considering the consequences of our actions and the likely impact on other people and animals.

For humanists, human beings alone are responsible for making the world a better place. Many campaign for equality, human rights, and secularism (a state that guarantees freedom of belief with no one privileged or disadvantaged because of their religion or belief). They celebrate the progress humanity has made, but recognise the work that is still to be done.

happy	non-religious	empathy	natural	potential	evidence
science	secularism	evolved	free	responsible	one life