

What is humanism?: fill in the blanks activity

Humanism is a _____ worldview or approach to life shared by millions of people in the UK and around the world. Humanists believe it is possible to lead a good, happy, and meaningful life without the need for religion.

Humanists believe the world is a _____ place with no supernatural side. They don't believe in a god. They try to use _____, and look for _____, to answer questions about the world.

Science has discovered that human beings _____ naturally. We have evolved many talents and capacities. Humanists believe that, if we put our capacities to good use, we have the _____ to make life better for people and other animals.

Humanists believe this is the _____ we have and so we need to make the most of it. They believe we should all be _____ to decide how we live (as long as we do not cause harm to others). We should try to find what makes us _____ and support others to do the same.

Many humanists say we should treat other people kindly and fairly. When deciding how to treat others, we should use _____. We should consider the consequences of our actions and the likely impact on other people and animals. Many humanists admire and try to live by _____: 'Treat other people as you'd want to be treated in their situation. Do not treat others in a way you would not like to be treated yourself.'

For humanists, human beings alone are _____ for making the world a better place. Many campaign for equality and human rights. They celebrate the progress we have made, but recognise the work that is still to be done.

happy	non-religious	empathy	natural	potential	evidence
science	the Golden Rule	evolved	free	responsible	one life

What is humanism?: fill in the blanks activity (answers)

Humanism is a non-religious worldview or approach to life shared by millions of people in the UK and around the world. Humanists believe it is possible to lead a good, happy, and meaningful life without the need for religion.

Humanists believe the world is a natural place with no supernatural side. They don't believe in a god. They try to use science, and look for evidence, to answer questions about the world.

Science has discovered that human beings evolved naturally. We have evolved many talents and capacities. Humanists believe that, if we put our capacities to good use, we have the potential to make life better for people and other animals.

Humanists believe this is the one life we have and so we need to make the most of it. They believe we should all be free to decide how we live (as long as we do not cause harm to others). We should try to find what makes us happy and support others to do the same.

Many humanists say we should treat other people kindly and fairly. When deciding how to treat others, we should use empathy. We should consider the consequences of our actions and the likely impact on other people and animals. Many humanists admire and try to live by the Golden Rule: 'Treat other people as you'd want to be treated in their situation. Do not treat others in a way you would not like to be treated yourself.'

For humanists, human beings alone are responsible for making the world a better place. Many campaign for equality and human rights. They celebrate the progress we have made, but recognise the work that is still to be done.

happy	non-religious	empathy	natural	potential	evidence
science	the Golden Rule	evolved	free	responsible	one life